

PREDICT ULTIMATE CONTROL OF SORES IN CANCER CLASS

Use of New Chemical Compound Stands Out As An Important One

DETAILS ANNOUNCED

May Be Able To Govern The Growths Through Intelligent Application

PHILADELPHIA, Apr. 26.—(INS)—The prediction that ultimate control of cancerous and other malignant growths may eventually prevail by use of a new chemical compound for the treatment of all sores stood out today as the most important announcement yet to be made during the two-day annual conference of the American Philosophical Society in convention here.

The details of the discovery were announced by Dr. Frederick S. Hammett, one of the research workers in the Rodman Wanamaker Foundation of Lankenau Hospital here.

"The possibility is opened of governing at will, through intelligent application of this exact chemical equilibrium, all those processes which affect mankind through the phenomenon of cell proliferation or reproduction," Dr. Hammett said.

This chemical equilibrium is chiefly composed of sulphur, Dr. Hammett went on to explain. Various compounds of it have resulted in mixtures which promote the healthy healing of wounds by 300 per cent, he asserted. Ordinary cuts and wounds were made to heal in half the usual time by the sulphur compound.

To support his claim that the mixture might result in a cure for cancer, Dr. Hammett cited the results of various experiments. In one case a rat was completely cured of cancer.

Dr. Stanley P. Reiman carried out most of the experiments for the Wanamaker Foundation.

Dr. Reiman tried one of the sulphur mixtures upon a 78-year old man who had been afflicted with an ulcer for 18 years and in two weeks the ulcer healed, Dr. Hammett declared. In another experiment Dr. Reiman healed an open sore the size of a soup plate and an inch and a half deep within a period of three months.

In still other experiments 70 rats infected with cancerous growths were treated with a sulphur compound which retarded instead of increased cell growth. The cancerous growths in each case slowed down and in one case entirely disappeared according to the statistics revealed by Dr. Hammett. As a result of these experiments the eminent physician expressed the theory that all slow-healing wounds and possibly cancerous growths result from a lack of sulphur in some form in the human body.

Dr. Francis X. Dercum, of this city, again was named president of the Society, while James H. Breasted, of Chicago, Elihu Thomson and Henry Norris Russell, were named vice-presidents during the general business conference.

HOUSE APPROVES BILL FOR UPPER DELAWARE

Passes $111,000,000 Measure Containing $90,000 For Channel Here

SESSION WAS WILD ONE

A $111,000,000 river and harbor improvement program including $90,000 for that section of the Delaware River extending from Philadelphia to Trenton, N. J., was approved by the House at Washington, D. C., yesterday. The session was a wild and dramatic one and bristled with charges of deception, bribery and pork-barrel legislation.

Included in the program adopted by the House are projects calling for the expenditure of $9,339,000 on Pennsylvania waterways.

Even while the House was passing the bulky measure, the expectation gained credence that President Hoover would not approve appropriations of more than the $55,000,000 fixed by the Budget Bureau for such expenditures in the fiscal year 1931.

The projects in the measure are expected to be considered in three classes, as necessary and urgent, as necessary but not urgent, and as projects which in time will become necessary.

A study of the projects in the measure is being made to place them definitely in these three classifications, but it became known that the much-disputed Erie Canal project was considered as belonging in the third class.

Among the projects approved were the following:

Delaware River, Philadelphia to Trenton, N. J., $90,000.
Delaware River below Philadelphia, $3,915,000.
Delaware River at Camden, N. J., $311,000.

IRON ORE DEPOSIT AT HULMEVILLE EXTENSIVELY WORKED IN THE VILLAGE OF HUNDRED YEARS AGO; OTHER INDUSTRIES FLOURISHED AT THAT TIME, TOO

A Glue Factory, Cotton Factory, Woolen and Grist Mills All Were Located in What is Now a Growing Community in This Section of Bucks County — Practically All of the Mills Were Built by Residents of the Town.

Herewith is presented the third installment of an interesting and informative article concerning the Borough of Hulmeville. It will be continued from day to day until completed.

Not only was the post village known years ago as a mill center, but other industries were conducted there. In the section of the village where the old Methodist Church is located, not far from the banks of the creek, there was a deposit of iron ore. This was extensively worked over 100 years ago. A Philadelphia company worked the deposit and had it shipped to the Quaker City to be smelted. At one time a glue factory was located within the confines of the town, near the center of the place. In 1831 a cotton factory was established at Hulmeville, two years after a woolen factory and a grist mill were burned.

Practically the mills, or in fact the greater part of the town was owned by John Hulme, Jr., and his sons, George, Isaac, Samuel, Joseph, and his sons-in-law, Joshua Canby and George Harrison, just prior to 1818. But 21 years later, it is said to relate that Joseph Hulme, a store-keeper, failed (1839) and ruined one of his brothers who was a miller, John Hulme, the father of the boys mentioned in the preceding lines, was one of the most prominent, wealthy and influential men of that time in Bucks County.

One man who began life poor in Hulmeville, Samuel Stockton White, died worth a million. He became a distinguished dentist and manufacturer of dentists' supplies, carrying on business in Philadelphia.

Incorporation of Hulmeville as a borough took place in the year 1872, and more noted strides forward were made after that time. Improvements started to appear, both to the homes and public places and the town in general.

The Newtown, Langhorne and Bristol trolley railway was chartered in 1895, and a portion of the trolley road was built in the spring of 1896, from the upper section of Langhorne to the then Bound Brook Railroad, about one mile. The trolleys commenced operation April 15, 1896, and shortly after the tracks were extended to Hulmeville and Bristol. Later Langhorne was connected with Newtown, and in the spring of 1900 the road was finished to Doylestown. After the trolley cars ceased operation a few years ago, motor buses were operated between Doylestown and Bristol through Hulmeville. Buses were discontinued in the early part of May, 1927, leaving the town without any means of public conveyance to date.

Eight years after the incorporation of the borough, or in 1880, the population was 376. The population of the

Wm. Hobensack Leaves Property Valued at $150,000 To His Family

SONS GET HIS BUSINESS

DOYLESTOWN, Apr. 26.—An estate valued at $150,000 and upwards is bequeathed to members of his family and relatives in the will of William Hobensack, prominent Ivyland coal feed and lumber merchant who died at his home on April 11.

The will, dated January 2, 1930, was probated in the office of the Register of Wills of Bucks county and names two sons, Isaac Cornell Hobensack and George S. Hobensack, of Ivyland, as the executors. The personal property is listed at $100,000 and upwards and the real estate, including three farms, a number of houses, a business enterprise in Ivyland and property in Florida is listed at $50,000.

Among the first provisions mentioned in the will is that of the right of the sons, Isaac Cornell Hobensack and George S. Hobensack to take the Ivyland business place, one of the best known of its kind in Bucks county for $30,000, and all the stock in trade in the business at cost less 10 per cent. The document also provides that the two sons each receive a wage of $75 a week in addition to their commission as executors during the time consumed to settle the estate.

The very first provision of the will directs that Mrs. Mary A. Hobensack, wife of the deceased, be given $100,000 absolutely.

Other bequests are as follows: William H. Carrell, son of a daughter, Sarah May Carrell, $1,000; William Hobensack, a namesake and son of Isaac Cornell Hobensack, $1,000; Mary C. Another bequest of $2,000 in trust is made to a home in Maryland, the name of which is not mentioned in the will. This bequest to be carried out will necessitate making application to the court to have the name of the home inserted.

All the balance and residue of the estate, it is directed, shall be divided into seven equal parts, to be distributed as follows: Isaac Cornell Hobensack, William H. Carrell and H. Franklin Carrell, Bertha H. Carrell, George S. Hobensack, Anna H. Schepfel, Clarice D. Hobensack and Alice Hobensack, a daughter, whose share it is directed shall be placed in trust until she desires to take the principal.

Musical selections by the mandolin club of the legion auxiliary between the acts were much enjoyed.

PROBLEMS OF THE WORLD GONE OVER WITH FEDERATION

Mrs. Hope LeBar Roberts

We Live In"

COUNTY ASS'N MEETS

Women's Clubs of Bucks Enjoy Two Sessions Filled With Fine Numbers

(By Staff Correspondent)

QUAKERTOWN, Apr. 26.—"The World We Live In" was pictured to those attending the spring meeting of the Bucks County Federation of Women's Clubs, here, yesterday, as a maze of major and minor problems, national and international in their scope, through which mankind will eventually emerge victorious.

"The world" was told of by Mrs. Hope LeBar Roberts as she spoke at the afternoon session held in the First Reformed Church, here. This woman of keen intellect, who understands the questions of the day, and sees with clearer vision than many into the future, mentioned the World as a planet, nine-twelfths of which is water, upon which are living men of several hues, differing in language, dress, customs, habits. In words she pictured the airplanes of this day and age as shuttles between countries, with the "greyhounds" of the sea bringing peoples of one country into closer touch with those of another, and with the automobile and train each playing their part in civilization.

The manner in which wars have dwindled down through the last few centuries was brought to mind. "Wars are lessening in number, but increasing in devastation. War brings immorality and leaves scars of many kinds; however, we might be able to say it would be worthwhile in some cases if it brought lasting peace. But we must remember that it is a Herculean task to gather splendid ideals together; and there are many vital aspects for the peace advocates to deal with."

Mrs. Roberts spoke of the reaction in the different countries since the World War, and of the splendid come-backs being staged by many.

The leaders which Germany has had since that great conflict were mentioned, as well as the "housecleaning" job of Mussolini; troubles of Greece were gone over, some of which "are proving to be blessings in disguise, as Greece is coming forward in world affairs." "Jugo-Slavia is still in a state of unrest and turmoil," this one who has a splendid knowledge of all phases of her subject told the group. "Those who have been endeavoring to hold the regency in Rumania for the future boy-king have been having a great work" she continued while mentioning the problems of the various sections of the world. Hungary was next referred to as a "monarchy without a monarch"; and England's question of unemployment, with uprisings of the people in India and Egypt troubling Great Britain, was considered.

Then turning her thoughts toward America Mrs. Roberts continued with problems at home, holding well the attention of all through her fine command of the English language. "We are now in the first year of a new administration, and are far from settled. But I must say that when better people go into public office in America we will have a better government."

Major questions referred to which the United States is at present coping with are the tariff problem, the grain question, the unemployment situation, and prohibition.

The large group of telephone operators who have been discharged owing to installation of the dial system in many sections was mentioned; as well as the fact that there are 10,000 musicians out of work because the talking pictures have taken the place of musicians in theatres the country over. "The improvement in mechanism gives us something to think about. But just because we had a down, you can't tell me we will never have an up. I believe we have enough initiative to weather these storms that seem to come all at once. We will come safely through."

Speaking of prohibition the woman orator stated that "If we could have more education and less incrimination in this country we would forge ahead quicker."

"Women, we each have our part to play in this world. America is the world power, and the question confronting each of us is 'How shall we use this power?'"

SILLY CONTROVERSY

There are statements underserving of serious consideration which frequently provoke heated controversies. To that class belongs the assertion by a Baltimore clergyman that "there is no more justification for being a chaplain in the army or navy than there is for being a chaplain in a speakeasy."

That is a blatantly outrageous declaration, especially coming from the pulpit. It is surprisingly strong language, so much so that its author may not have realized it when the words formed on his lips. That he made an impression none will deny,
but it may have been his unhappy fortune to have conveyed other than the intended thought.

If it is his wish to deprive soldiers and sailors, often suffering great danger and mortal agony, from the aid and comfort offered the faithful by religion, it is indeed lax. In so expressing himself he hurts only himself and not the unselfish men who minister to the spiritual needs of fighters.

There is only one other construction that can be placed on his words: That war in any form and for any cause is opposed to the principles of Jesus Christ, and therefore, the fighter has forsaken Christian teachings. That is a pacifist doctrine and the Baltimore minister was preaching pacifism. But accepting that doctrine to be true for the sake of argument, when has the Christian church deserted any man because he has broken faith?

INCONSISTENCY

Inconsistency makes government a travesty, especially the inconsistencies contemporary governments are continually perpetrating. They are giving new values to the proverb, "Consistency, thou art a jewel."

There are the brazen contradictions of the Russian government.
The communists build a gigantic standing army while preaching disarmament and avowing opposition to armaments by principle. Moscow promises freedom to mankind and then takes away religious liberty and deprives the individual of the free exercise of his tastes on such matters as clothes and domestic architecture.

Nor is Washington free of gross inconsistencies. About a year ago the petroleum industry undertook voluntarily to limit its output. Each region was to be held to its production level. But the government stepped in and said that such a proceeding would not be allowed because it was repugnant to anti-trust laws. Now Secretary Wilbur is trying to force acceptance by the industry of a restricted prorated production schedule. Are we to suppose that the illegitimate is made legitimate by magic wand of government command?

Business has been similarly confounding since the government has approved price-fixing and cooperative marketing of farm products while it forbids the same practices by manufacturers.

A popular person is one who enjoys being bored.

When you look at what some men married you know that nothing less than love could have persuaded them to do it.

Iron Ore Deposit At Hulmeville Extensively Worked 100 Years Ago

Among the early institutions and fraternal orders in Hulmeville in the latter part of the 19th century were: Public library organized during the winter of 1877; Knights of Pythias, Good Templars, Y. M. C. A., two building associations, fire insurance company which was organized in 1842, I. O. O. F. order, public and private schools, and two churches.

After a number of structures had appeared during the years previous to 1832, it became necessary to have means for fighting fires. And so it was that a company was organized in that year, a number of companies following throughout the intervening years. A company was incorporated in 1838, which date appears on the present fire station. The company has always been known as the William Penn Fire Company.

In the early days of the company a small hand engine was purchased, one of a few that were made in Birmingham, England and sent to the United States. The small piece of apparatus, on four wheels, was drawn by hand, about six or eight men furnishing the motive power. Long levers operated the rotary pump, and the "engine" was equipped with leather hose and leather buckets. This "Old Billy Penn" as it is commonly known, is still in good condition, and was used up until about 15 years ago. It is highly prized by residents of the town, and particularly by the fire-fighters.

A few years ago a motion picture company, taking scenes for a short picture in Hulmeville, asked permission to use the little apparatus in one of the scenes. Consent was given and a number of boys and young men of the town pulled the "Old Billy Penn" as the camera did its work. One of the members of the group furnishing the motive power was William Korimsak, and some months later as the picture was flashed on the screen in a theatre in the Philippine Islands, some young men from Hulmeville then in their country's service, could not contain themselves as they saw the familiar fire "engine" and home-town scenes. One of the group was Joseph Korimsak, brother of one of the boys pulling the ancient piece.

Some decades ago there was no special place for housing the engine, and various buildings were used from time to time. Some years ago a barn on the property now owned and occupied by George LeCompte, Main street, caught fire. Men of the town, anxious to find the engine, hunted in buildings where it had been kept at different times, but no light was thrown on the hurried question asked. A group ran to the barn, however, ready to go into action with whatever implements were at hand, and when the door was thrown open at the front of the burning structure, the "Old Billy Penn" was revealed.

For a number of years the town hall, on Trenton avenue, a stone and frame structure, housed the fire-fighting apparatus. In 1915 a new fire station was erected on Green street, a two-story structure. On the first floor are the engine and billiard rooms, while on the second are a social hall and kitchen. Present officers of the company are: President, Cyrus E. Smith; vice-president, Edward Bilger; secretary, Lester D. Spill; treasurer, William Vansant; financial secretary, Joseph Keen. The trustees are: William L. Stackhouse, Edward Bilger, Edward Davis, Joseph P. Canby and Samuel Black. The company is comprised of 75 members. Serving the company as chief is Thomas K. Schatt; with Joseph Wheeler and Joseph Keen as assistant chiefs.

The present apparatus of the company include two pumpers, triple combination.

Over 15 years ago women of the town decided to organize a women's auxiliary to aid the fire company. The number has grown gradually, until today there are about 48 members. Officers of the auxiliary are: President, Mrs. William L. Stackhouse; vice-president, Mrs. George Spill; secretary, Mrs. Edward Davis; treasurer, Mrs. Ezekiah Barton.

innings will constitute a game, unless rain or darkness makes play impossible, in which case 4½ innings will be all that is necessary. All games are to commence promptly at 6:45 o'clock, some being played at St. Ann's field, Bristol, some at Croydon, and others at Emilie.

David Landreth is president of the Twilight League; with Thomas Juno, vice-president, and Francis G. Ellis, secretary-treasurer. Umpires are to be Joseph Riola and John Elmer; with Thomas Juno and Francis G. Ellis acting as official scorers.

Many contracts of the players of the teams were turned in last night, but will not be announced to the public until all the documents are in the hands of the officials.

At the next meeting, all contracts of players must be in or they will be ineligible to begin the season. Each team is allowed a limit of fifteen players.

This year, to prevent teams from using the so-called "cheap" balls, the league will buy the balls and the teams in turn buy from the league.

Problems of The World Are Gone Over With Federation

"I like to think that we are engaged in building up a powerful universe. Let us see clearly the task before us."

Mrs. Daniel Erdman, a member of the Quakertown Woman's Club, the hostess club, welcomed the 250 women at the beginning of the morning session, Mrs. Walter Raab, second vice-president of the federation, responding most graciously.

Rev. H. J. Leinbach, pastor of the church in which the two sessions of the day were held, made the invocation shortly after 10 o'clock, and returned in the afternoon to give two vocal solos, which were well received.

A great portion of the morning meeting was given over to reports of the many committees, with Mrs. Ferdinand Sommer, president of the county federation, in the chair. It was reported by Mrs. Harold Crumrine, of Langhorne, chairman of the juniors, that there are only four juvenile branches in the county. She stressed the need for junior workers, and advised women of every club represented to consider it a duty to see that a junior branch is organized in connection with their club. In reference to the Mothers' Assistance committee, Miss Laura Haines told of the use being made of the $1,000 given by the county commissioners for alleviating needs of the mothers in poor circumstances, which sum is being used for payment for the extra or unusual needs in many cases. Representing the S. P. C. A. committee the one reading the report of Mrs. Irvin M. James told of the increased work of this association in Bucks County, and of the price of $5 given to the club increase in membership.

perceiving the greatest percentage of increase in membership was awarded to the Makefield Mothers' Club. The check was accepted by the president of the winning club.

Contributions were also announced during the morning from a number of clubs for the purchase of a farm bordering on the State Forest Reserve in Allegheny county. The County Federation, it was moved, will make up the needed amount that will bring Bucks County's share of this state project to $100.

Report was made on the attempt to have a welfare worker appointed in Bucks, which endeavor is being sponsored by the county league of Women Voters, and backed by the Federation.

A committee was appointed to learn what can be done in elimination of billboards in the county.

The address of the morning was delivered by Mrs. Charles Musser, state chairman of county federations and extension. This practical talk was relative to the carrying forward of club work. Some of the points brought out in a clear and concise manner were: "We should always boost, but if we have criticism let it be of the constructive kind, giving it to the right person at the proper time and place; advertise your club, as we should remember that others picture us largely as we picture ourselves; cooperate with other organizations in the community, being unselfish and sharing with others all you can; inspire, interest and invite others to join your club; find communities still without women's clubs and report such to the proper individuals, as extension work can well be done in such places." Continuing, Mrs. Musser advised that the state work should be coordinated with the county and state work. "All talk about the same thing so it will not be bewildering to the women listening. We should work for the betterment of club women," continued the speaker, who closed with the remark that "the value of this club movement depends entirely upon our appreciation of it and the use we put it to."

The afternoon session, commencing at the conclusion of the serving of a delightful luncheon, proved to be a most interesting one. Besides the inspiring talk given by Mrs. Roberts, there were many other numbers which interested and proved of help to all.

Singing of the state song and roll call were the first items on the program.

Mrs. Alfred Johnson delighted the audience with a harp solo, "Mazurka," which was followed with another pleasing selection. Another harp selection given later in the afternoon was "By the Brook." Mrs. Johnson's musical ability was appreciated by the many club women in attendance.

As it was not possible for the dramatic club of the Quakertown high school to present the scheduled play, one member of the club, a young boy of the high school, gave an interesting monologue. Facial expressions, his lectures and interest in the theme of the selection proved most amusing, appreciation being voiced in prolonged applause.

The second speaker of the second meeting of the day was Mrs. Ralph Godcharles, second vice-president of the state federation.

Mrs. Godcharles brought to her hearers a message which she hoped will eventually "bring equal opportunity to the folks of the county as those in the city have—a county library."

"Regardless of wealth, age or color, the county library gives an equal opportunity and advantage to all," remarked the vice-president. She went over the manner in which the system operates, stating that it is worked in the same way in which a city library is. "A county library supplies books, gives service, transportation is furnished for books, and schools are assisted as well as individuals."

Each month a fresh group of book selections are available in the many districts of the county, the woman said, the "bookmobile" carrying the volumes from place to place. Mrs. Godcharles expressed the wish that Bucks County will soon have this service, trusting that it will come to pass through efforts of Bucks County's club women.
